

Best Websites to find Scholarships

Scholarships are not talked about very often on the internet, but they are extremely beneficial for everyone, especially those who are less able to afford the expensive tuition that universities charge.

1. Scholarships.com

While the scholarships on this website are quite niche, it can be a good way to find less competitive scholarships from sponsors you would not have known or expected. However, it is only available for US-based universities.

2. Study UK

A website by the British government, and only scholarship programs given directly by universities, not by independent sponsors. This can be useful, as there are a lot of universities who give scholarships, and because some of them are only available to those taking a specific course, the competition can be lower.

3. TheScholarshipHub by Blackbullion

A well-made website containing all types of scholarships, from area-specific ones, to university-given scholarships. The website also tells you if the scholarships are still open, along with how much the grant is, without having to go to each individual website.

4. IEFA – International Education and Financial Aid

Mostly for international students and has one of the oldest global scholarship databases.

iefa